President and CEO
The Partnership, Inc.

Dr. Beverly Edgehill is President and CEO of The Partnership, a leadership and career mentoring organization for professionals of color. Prior to leading The Partnership, Beverly spent over 20 years as a leadership development executive in retail, high tech, and financial services industries where she led teams to design and implement leadership development solutions. Most recently Beverly was a vice president of leadership development at Fidelity Investments.

At The Partnership, Beverly utilizes her expertise in leadership learning and mentoring, organizational assessment, and leadership program design and delivery. She works with a diverse group of professionals, ranging from individual contributors to senior executives, to help them improve their overall leadership effectiveness. Additionally, she works with senior executive teams to develop workplace solutions that address their employee retention objectives for professionals of color.

Beverly has presented at several leadership development conferences including those hosted by The Conference Board, Interaction Associates, Babson College, Bentley College, and Mt. Ida College. She has been featured in several business publications, namely the Conference Board's Above the Line, the Boston Business Journal, Crain's Business Journal, Chicago Business News, and the Hispanic Business News. She has also been on This Week in Business, NECN and Greater Boston, WGBH. Beverly is featured in a Harvard Business School Case study, which highlights her transition into the prominent role as President and CEO of The Partnership, Inc.

Beverly holds a doctorate in adult and organizational learning from Teacher's College, Columbia University. Her research examined the connection between the ways in which professional career women think about career success and the strategies they adapt to achieve career success. She is currently writing a paper for publication on this topic.

Beverly serves on the boards of The Commonwealth Institute, The Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce, Beaver Country Day School, and The Jeannette Rankin Foundation. Beverly is married and has two children.
