Dear social work, health and human service Professionals and students,

Imagine how confident you would feel communicating with your Spanish speaking clients in their language! What an impression you could make by e-mailing your Latino colleagues and clients in Spanish!

The growth in the number of organizations serving non-English speaking populations has brought about a sharp rise in the demand for bilingual social workers. In response to this demand, and through our commitment to promote cultural competence — understanding the specific cultural, linguistic, social, and economic nuances of particular groups — Simmons College of social work offers a special customized conversational Spanish language program for social work, health, and human services. This program is made possible by our longstanding partnership with Berlitz.

It's possible...with Berlitz! When working with your Latino client, we can give you the strongest competitive edge. Even learning a few words of a client's native language can go a long way toward soothing concerns and opening avenues of communication.

Berlitz makes language learning fast, pleasant, and effective. You'll start speaking and thinking in Spanish from your very first class. You'll learn Spanish in the same natural manner in which you learned to speak your first language. You will develop your skills through a conversational approach with native-fluent Berlitz instructors, so you'll learn Spanish the way it's really spoken.

We look forward to helping you develop Spanish as a skill that can be included in your resume and offered to potential employers. Participants will receive a Berlitz certificate of completion at the end of course. We are offering beginner and intermediate courses. Please refer to the Berlitz proficiency level chart in order to assess your needs.
