HONORS PROGRAM

Simmons's Honors Program provides an enriched curriculum offered through small seminars, team-taught courses, study abroad opportunities, research projects, and/or honors independent study. The program is designed to encourage depth of study in the student's chosen major, and to enhance knowledge through interdisciplinary study and global awareness. The program also includes career exploration courses, cocurricular activities on campus and in Boston, and assistance with applying for graduate school and national awards, such as the Fulbright, Truman, and Boren grants.

Those who are admitted into this highly selective program are self-motivated, intellectually curious, and eager for challenge. They graduate near the top of their high school class and have a solid record of honors, AP, or IB courses. All first-year and transfer applicants are welcome to apply by submitting the three additional requirements below. The application deadline is March 1st, though we encourage you to complete your honors application earlier.

I. Please submit an original graded paper.

II. Please submit either Essay A or B below and answer in approximately 350-400 words.

A. The Honors Program encourages students to experience life in another country. If you were to study abroad for a month or a semester, what country would you prefer to visit and what would you hope to learn from your experiences in another culture?

B. Honors students at Simmons often take an active role in student government and organizations, including our student newspaper The Simmons Voice. Write the lead editorial for the Voice on an issue of local, national, or global importance.

III. Think about the books you have read during your high school years (inside and outside of the classroom); rank the three best in order. Explain the reason for your top selection.
